Mr. Brayton Danner

For the last two years, it has been tradition for the yearbook staff to change members from fall semester to spring semester. However, there have been some constants this year. Those pictured were active members all year long, some even working during the summer months. Mr. Danner and Mrs. Bloch have been busy with the yearbook all year, putting finishing touches on it through the summer.

Early in the fall semester, yearbook members attended a conference where they viewed designs, layouts, and pictures. Putting to paper new ideas while staying within budget was a challenge. We hope you enjoy the memories contained in this book for years to come.

For the last two years, the yearbook has been made possible with the help of an energetic man, Mr. Brayton Danner. Most of the campus shots (he says "pics") and many of the candid shots were his work, as well as the photographs of individual faculty, staff, and administration. Mr. Danner's contributions to Lincoln College are not limited to the yearbook, however. Not only does he dig to design and manicure the campus greenery and flower beds, but he also creates the photographic display in the showcase on the ground floor of Harts Science. For the myriad artistic touches he produces on the Lincoln College campus, and especially the continual commitment he has made to the yearbook, we sincerely and heartily thank Mr. Danner.

For the first time in the six year history of the ensemble, the Lincoln Express presented two complete shows. First was the Christmas Special, filmed on WICS TV, and next was the Rock and Roll tour show.

When the group performed during Parents' Weekend, not only was there standing room only, but the reception by the audience, composed of students, parents, and townspeople, was staggering.

LINCOLN EXPRESS

This year the Lincoln College Chorale presented three concerts. The Parents' Weekend Concert, the Christmas Concert, and the Annual Spring Showcase brought large crowds and rave reviews. In addition, the Chorale performed at the commencement for the class of 1990.

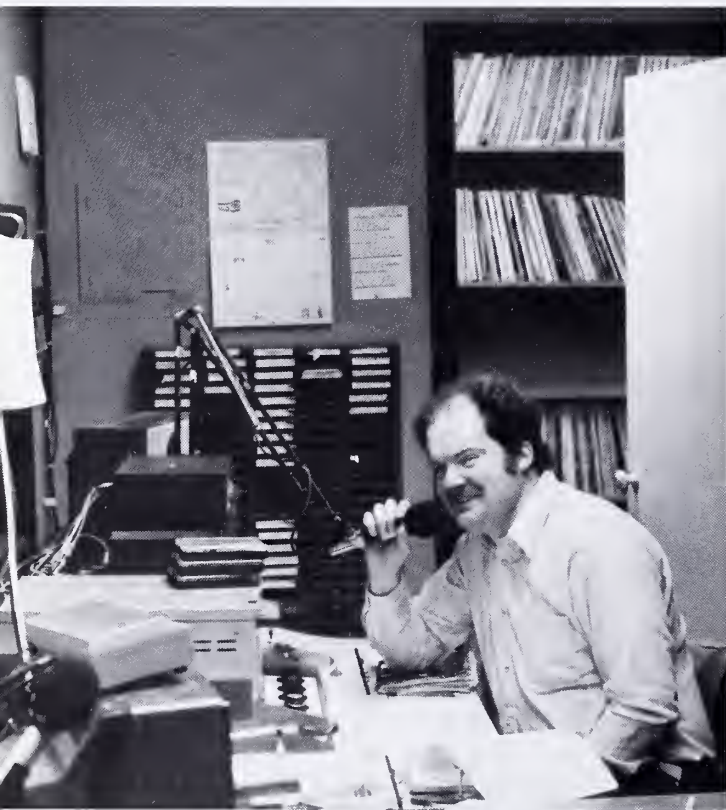

Bill Buffington directs the Chorale, as well as the Express.

LINCOLN COLLEGE RADIO 88.9 MHz. WLNK

The 1989-90 academic year was full of changes for WLNK-FM. Elimination of non-Top 40 heavy metal music, a new paint job to the lobby and studio, and donation of new lobby furniture by the Alumni Association aided Loyd Kirby, the new general manager, in making changes in the appearance and sound of the station.

VISUAL ARTS

During the 1989-90 school year, the college art gallery was moved and given a new name. In October, the new Layman Art Gallery was opened and christened in honor of Wilbur and Louise Layman. Shows during the premier year included "Works on Paper" by Martha Kaplan, "Photographs" by David Zalaznik, "Watercolor Monotype Assemblagraphs" by Robert Lee Mejer, and the "Annual Art Students' Exhibition," all coordinated and made possible by art instructor Larry Thomas.

ORGANIZATIONS

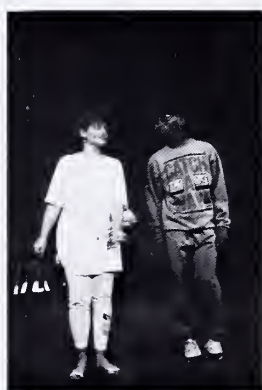

The L'Mode Style Club is comprised of students who are interested in looking good and feeling good about themselves.

During the course of the 1989-90 school year, L'Mode activities included the much acclaimed Parents' Weekend Fashion Show, two talent contents, and a shopping trip to Bloomington.

L'Mode members learned a great many things from the group advisor, Ms. Maria Carmen Bailey, who arranged talks on body health, hair, makeup, alternative career opportunities, and beauty consultation.

LINCOLN COLLEGE, LINCOLN, ILLINOIS

FEBRUARY 19, 1990

Career Night does the j

by Darin Jarling

The first Lincoln College Career Night was quite a success.

The event, sponsored by the Lincoln College Counseling Department, took place Jan. 29 in the Library Lecture Room and attracted about 25 LC students and staff. The crowd listened to three informative speakers consisting of Julie Payne on communication careers, Brian Baldea on health, physical education and recreation careers, and Dennis Noonan on criminal investigation careers.

Payne, director of community relations at BroMenn Healthcare in Bloomington, stated that the field of communications consists of a variety of jobs. Amongst these jobs mentioned were television work, radio, photography, writing, graphics design, working for a newspaper or magazine, and working for an advertising and marketing agency.

Payne went on to say what kind of person would be right to fulfill a career in communications. Emphasizing that you first pick a field that best matches your personality, she said you must also be the type of person that wants to learn, is creative, likes working with people, and enjoys knowing what's going on in the world.

If you plan to pursue a career in communications, Payne suggests taking group study classes and any classes that will help strengthen your communication skills. Going into this field, you can expect to start with a salary of somewhere between $15,000 and $30,000.

Baldea, coordinator of academic advisement at Illinois State University, noted that students would need a bachelor's and master's degree in sports medicine for the recreation field. He suggested that you have some recreational communications background.

In this field, you can find a job at an amusement park, swimming pool, anything else of recreational nature, working at a resort, or even doing a civic center fitness job. Noonan pointed to this area of work as a good prospect to start off somewhere between $22,000.

Noonan, manager of Criminal Investigations at the Illinois Department of Police in Springfield, emphasized the many areas of work in criminal investigations. Such as working in a mall or business, being a corrections officer at a prison, or being an investigator for the police.

Noonan suggests taking plenty of math and accounting if you plan on going into this type of work, and he stated that you must be very self-motivated and dependable. Noonan also mentioned that in some cases you will have to be the type of person that will be able to ask a suspect tough questions and make a stand.

In this area of work, you should be ready to start off at a salary of $18,000-$26,000 a year with a $5,000 raise after your first year.

If you would like more information on any of these topics, you may contact Kathy Lewis in the counseling office on the second floor of McKinstry Library.

The Emancipator staff was active during the second semester. With prolific writing, five reporters put out three issues. The full-size format of 1988-89 was continued, but with copy added on the front page. Competitive teams and an active student body and staff provided much to report.

involve a required number of hours on the air. With more disc jockeys, the station can cover more of the format.

able to tell record companies how often their songs have been aired.

Unlike last year's broadcasting instructor, Kirby is full-time, filling out his schedule with one mathematics class each semester. He said his full-time status provides "an insurance policy for the radio station" because it requires a commitment in office time and therefore more supervision.

He is repainting the station and refurbishing the lobby with furniture donated by the Alumni Association. Kirby reported that, although there is still a lot of work to be done, definite progress has been made.

December 1974, when it had only 32 it received authorization from the Federal Communications Commission for a boost to 225 watts.

From the start to May 1985, Brayton Danner was station manager as well as professor of broadcasting, science and mathematics. Since his retirement he continues as chief engineer for WLNX and handles maintenance problems. Kirby said he can't give Danner enough credit for setting up the station and caring about the progress of the students. Kirby himself was one of Danner's students and won the broadcasting award in 1985.

The station hit troubled times last year when, according to administrators, the part-time manager did not adequately supervise students. The results were that FCC regulations were not followed, obscenities and profanities were broadcast, and there was no quality or professional work on part of the DJs, Kirby said.

He said he listens to all broadcasts, either on the air or on tape. If he hears a song with lyrics

Dr. DiLillo's overseas adventure prompted this statement from a participant: "Lincoln College must take great pride in giving its students such an opportunity to experience culture firsthand, something that can never be truly taught from a book or in the classroom." Highlights of the trip included seeing the Statue of David, viewing the ruins of Pompeii and the Tower of Pisa, as well as having an audience with the Pope.

AGRI-BUSINESS CLUB

The Agri-Business Club, instructed by Gary Freeman, opened doors for ten future agriculturists: Ted DeMent, Michael Turner, Cinthya Pedigo, Austin Bahn, Craig Riley, Cheryl Irwin, Amy Wiggers, Marty McCombs, Jeff Goetz, and Cindy Johnson. The members made all the decisions on planting, budgeting, labor, grain varieties, chemicals and care of its 65 acre farm. Members participated in the federal farm program and national competition of the Postsecondary Agricultural Student Organization, where Cindy Johnson won 2nd place in the employment interview contest.

Under the supervision of Kathy Lewis, S.H.O.S. members have met other students and learned more about themselves. This year S.H.O.S. has participated in various activities, such as freshman orientation, a fall hay-ride, intramural volleyball, textbook raffle, and candy cane sales. S.H.O.S. sponsored the idea of keeping friends from driving drunk for alcohol awareness week and games between parents, students and faculty for parents' weekend.

WRESTLING LYNX

Again this year, the wrestlers competed at nationals. Led by Felix McLin and Steve Hughes, national champions, the team came away with a 3rd place national ranking. Four wrestlers, Marquis Lewis, Felix McLin, Steve Hughes, and Robert Young, qualified as all Americans. Coach Branum chose Felix McLin as the Most Valuable Wrestler, Steve Hughes as the Most Outstanding Wrestler, and Trevon Williams as the Most Improved Wrestler.

LYNX GOLFERS

At 82-4, the golf team led by Scott Gilliland just realized its most successful season since coach Mike Riley started the program at Lincoln College five years ago. Sophomores Scott Gilliland, Dave Cole, Brad Gehrke, Jay Jones, Bill Peifer, Bob Rieger, and John Stauder leave next year's Lynx golfers a strong legacy. As a qualifier for nationals, Gilliland will be competing in Scottsdale, AZ, in June.

Comment: "Coach Scott isn't too bad of a swim coach for a diver!"

Led by national champion 100-yd. butterflyer Chris Ulrich, the men's team capped a successful season with a 9th place finish at nationals. At regionals the men swam to an impressive 8-2 dual meet record and a 4th place finish. Captain Chris Ulrich holds the school record in two events: 100 fly with 50.79 secs.; 100 free with 46.68 secs.

Led by Gina DuCharme, captain and school record holder in nine individual events and three relays, the women's team coasted to a 4-6 record with a 3rd place finish at regionals.

LADY

LYNX BASKETBALL

The Lady Lynx were comprised of a group of girls who knew nothing but determination and dedication. Struggling with nagging injuries throughout the year, the girls knew how to help each other with encouragement and strong leadership. Encouragement came from strong bonds with each other, and the leadership from an exceptional group of sophomores.

Comments: I wish the Lynx good luck with their season next year, and I hope they find a good coach.

Demetrius and Rusty

In the famous words of Clint Eastwood, "Improvise, adapt, and overcome." The 1989 Lady Lynx did all of the above. They overcame their height disadvantage and doubts that they wouldn't fare well this season. They were a special group of young ladies and one of the best defensive teams around. Whether it was putting out fires, helping with the Special Olympics, or winning sportsmanship awards, they were the best. The big and powerful teams fell under the determination and desire of this group of athletes. They adapted to all situations, overcoming anything that was in front of them. I called them "the team with the biggest hearts and the never say die attitude." I love ya' Lady Lynx! We didn't even get lost this year! — Coach

A blend of professional and para-professionals supervised the five residence halls on campus. The mixture of experience and energy helped make this year's residence hall staff one of the finest. The 1989-90 staff informed and entertained their residents through several meetings and activities which contributed to a successful and enjoyable year. R.A.s are selected carefully by the Dean of Students Office.

Following are the seven new R.A.s not pictured: Jennifer Baumgardt, Jason Beebe, Jennifer Coggeshall, Brian Glass, Pete Porzio, Curtis White, and Darin Jarling.
